Foreign and Yet Not Foreign.

(From the Springfield Republican.) Against Judge Lochren's opinion as to the constitutional powers of Congress over the new territory of the United States, comes that of Judge William K. Townsend, sitting in the United States district court for Southern New York. The latter holds views quite the reverse of those expressed by the United States circuit judge at St. Paul in the habeas corpus case of the Porto Rican, Ortiz.
The case before Judge Townsend related to

AN ASSESSMENT OF DUTIES on importation of tobacco from Porto Rico after the treaty of Paris had been ratified and an exchange of ratifications had taken place. The importers, John Goetz & Co., appealed the matter to the board of general appraisers, which decided against the importers, who thereupon took the case to the United States court, contending that Porto Rico had become a part of the United States and within the tariff laws of the nation. Judge Townsend decides that Porto Rico is not a part of the United States to this extent and will not become such a part until Congress has expressly defined the status of the island to this effect.

THE TREATY OF PEACE left with Congress the determination of "the civil rights and political status of the territories hereby ceded," and it was within the constitutional authority of the treaty-making power, says Judge Townsend, to give Congress unlimited power in the matter. Congress meantime has refused to extend the Constitution and the laws to the island, and accordingly it remains outside of the Constitution.
It is foreign country so far as the Constitution is concerned, but United States territory as against other nations.

Judge Townsend brings out no new authority or precedent in support of this side of the question, beyond the STATEMENT OF CHIEF JUSTICE MAR-SHALL (in American Insurance Company against Carter) respecting "the usage of the world" in the case of ceded territory: "It becomes a part of the nation to which it is annexed, either on the terms stipulated in the treaty of cession or on such as its new master shall impose." The gist of Judge Townsend's is contained in the following:

"To deny this power, to govern territory at arm's length would be to thwart that intention to make THE UNITED STATES AN UNFETTERED SOVEREIGN
in foreign affairs. For if we wage war successfully we must some time become, as many think we are now, charged with territory which it would be the greatest folly to incorporate at once into our Union, making our laws its laws and its citizens our citizens, our taxes its taxes; and which, on the other hand, international considerations and the sense of our responsibility to its inhabitants may forbid us to abandon. The construction of the Constitution which would limit our sovereign power would force us into a dilemma between violating our duty to ourselves or the other. That construction would in such case imperil the honorable existence of our republic."

And so the president and the Senate, as the treaty-making power, may annex any territory they are able to, and may then delegate to Congress the power to act beyond the Constitution, and exactly as it pleases, in relation to the new territory.

Now the duly constituted government of the United States may indeed be AN UNFETTERED SOVEREIGN IN FOR-EIGN AFFAIRS;
but when foreign territory has once been annexed to the United States we come to deal not with a foreign, but with a domestic affair—with territory of the United States and not with some other sovereign power. And here is the fatal weakness in Judge Townsend's argument. When, therefore, he asserts the power of the president and Senate to delegate unlimited power to Congress in relation to territory of the United States, he is obliged to maintain that the government at Washington is a government of unrestricted powers rather than one exercising a certain measure of delegated authority from a power paramount to that of president and Congress.

Such views as these place the government above the people who created it, and who, in a written Constitution, imposed bounds upon the scope of its authority. They seem to us to be

REVOLUTIONARY DOCTRINE and to mark with renewed emphasis the great change which is quietly being forced into American institutions to meet the needs of a revolutionary policy of distant conquest and alien annexations. The people of the United States are, or were, the sovereign power in this country, and not the government at Washington. The people can, if they choose, delegate to President or Congress the unlimited power claimed for them by Judge Townsend; but this the people have not as yet done, and until they have done so Congress can step beyond the constitutional law of its being, in the government of territory of the United States only by an act of usurpation.—Sentinel of Liberty.

An Epidemic of Diarrhoea.
Mr. A. Sanders, writing from Cocoa-nut Grove, Fla., says there has been quite an epidemic of diarrhoea here.
He had a severe attack and was cured by four doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says he also recommended it to others and they say it is the best medicine they ever used. For sale by druggist.

Dockery and Railway Employees.
The following is taken from the Sedalia Democrat of last Sunday: Many Republican politicians, in seeking for some ground upon which to base the hope for an increased vote for their party in Missouri, have jumped to the conclusion that because their nominee for Governor, Joe Flory was once a railroad man, thousands of railroad employes who have been Democrats heretofore are going to fall over each other in rushing to the polls to vote the Republican ticket.

Never was there a more flimsy ground upon which to build a hope, and never was disappointment more certain!

The railroad employes of Missouri are intelligent men. They must be in order to perform the arduous and often hazardous duties required of them.
Being intelligent men, they act from reason and not from mere class prejudice.

They are Democrats, Republicans, Populists or Prohibitionists. They have their clearly defined political convictions, and, like the lawyers, the physicians, the carpenters, the farmers and men of other avocations, they go to the polls and vote as their judgment dictates.

Nobody carries the railroad vote of Missouri in his vest pocket.
Then unless some good reason for doing so can be assigned, there is no ground upon which to believe that Democrats among railroad men are going to vote for the Republican nominee for Governor, and to assume that they will so vote is to insult them.

No such reason has been assigned.
In all the speeches made and articles published in advocacy of Flory, the Democrat has seen no effort even to show that Flory has ever done anything to earn the gratitude friendship of railroad men.

To be sure, he was himself a railroad employe years ago, and quit his employment to go into politics. But this is no reason why railroad men should vote for him unless he has done something to show an especial friendship for them.

Dockery was once a practising physician, and Sam Cook is a newspaper man, but nobody assumes that the physicians and newspaper men are going to vote the Democratic ticket merely because these two names are upon it.

But, while there has been no proof offered that Flory ever did anything to merit the especial esteem of railroad men, there is abundant evidence of Dockery's labors in their behalf, and evidence too, that the railroad men appreciate these efforts.

In proof of both of these propositions the Democrat submits the following letter, which is self-explanatory:
E. E. CLARK, M. CLANCY, Grand Chief Conduc- Grand Secretary.
ORDER OF RAILWAY CONDUCT-TORS OF AMERICA.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IO., May 21, 1898.

Hon. A. M. Dockery, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.: Dear Sir—I have noted with pleasure the efforts you put forth in connection with the recent passage by the House of Representatives of the bill commonly known as the "Arbitration Bill," in which we have been deeply interested, and assure you that your work is appreciated by myself and those whom I represent. Yours truly, E. E. CLARK.
G. C. C.

Here, then, is the Democratic nominee, a man of especial ability, broad-minded, liberal, safe, conservative, with a public record upon which there is neither spot nor blemish and who has given proof of his regard for and interest in railroad employes and other classes of laboring men.

United States are, or were, the sov-

tional law of its being, in the govern-
of Liberty.

Those who argue a stampede to Flory have not taken the measure of the railroad men of Missouri and do not understand their sturdy manhood, good sense, patriotism and devotion to principle.

IS IT RIGHT.
For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?
From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C.
It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by druggist.

Webster Davis.
No selfish purpose can be attributed to Mr. Webster Davis in his renunciation of the Republican party and his declared adhesion to the Democratic party.

If he had been solicitous for the flesh pots they were his.
He had but to repress the sympathies of a generous heart for an oppressed people, and he would have been continued in one of the highest offices in the gift of the government.

The natural reluctance which a man has to sever the political connections of a lifetime were his. He hoped to be able to retain them. He pleaded with his associates that they should give some signs that they loved human liberty better than an alliance which was largely mercenary, but they would not heed. He then honorably asked for his liberty that he might devote his tongue and pen to the Boer cause. He received it, but accompanying the acceptance of his resignation came uncalled for criticisms of his conduct.

We heard his great speech in Washington City to one of the grandest audiences ever assembled at the capital, and we can testify that he not only avoided any unkind allusion to the administration but reproved it in others, hoping against hope that it would yet prove itself worthy upon this important question, which involves the duty of our country now and in future whenever a republic is being stricken down by a monarchy.

He came to Kansas City to plead with his party associates only to be played with and insulted. He went to Philadelphia, but to meet with disappointment and humiliation.
And after all what was it that he asked? Something for himself? Some office or emolument? Not, at all; but that a great political party calling itself republican should have the courage to put in its platform one little paragraph of sympathy for two other though weaker republics which are struggling against a monarchy to retain their liberty.

If there were no other question before the American people this one alone should determine them to pass adversely upon the claims of the Republican party for retention in power.
But there were other things as to which Mr. Davis' eyes were opened by his recent experiences, and he finds himself naturally in the democratic ranks with love of liberty and sympathy for others who also love it, and emancipation from British thralldom, as a sufficient platform.

On our part we welcome him because loving humanity he could not but come to us. We welcome him because the oratory which was held as the most effective by the administration in Ohio in 1896 will call young men away from the domination of syn-dicates and trusts to the defense of the rights of all peoples, to the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence.—Kansas City Times.

The statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, on Bedloe's Island, in New York harbor, is said to be in a rather worn condition. The Herald of that city says of the statue: Standing as she does mantled in a heavy coating of green rust, she presents a much bedraggled appearance, and her condition is the occasion for much adverse comment among the many thousands, whose business or pleasure takes them down the bay.
Commenting upon this, the Springfield Republican says: "It is small wonder that a statue of liberty should grow rusty nowadays. Pull it down and put up a statue of Dr. Gattling!"
